

ABOUT

Naked Madrid is a budding blog written in English by a multinational group of passionate Madrid transplants. We started this blog because we think Madrid is one of those cities that can best be enjoyed if a local shows you around. If you don't know any locals, Naked Madrid bloggers can fill the role! We write about our favorite restaurants, spots to hang out at and nearby day or overnight trips. We also provide general info on everything Madrid-related, from its neighborhoods, markets and rooftop bars, to how to get to the city's surrounding towns and natural swimming pools, to tips on helping expats get settled.

Feel free to ask us to write about specific topics. We want this blog to be useful, above all, for anyone who is in Madrid and wants to discover the city's best spots...